

NOTABLE EDITORIAL

Comments of Prominent Democrats on Article of

In Which That Journal Gives Reasons for Advocating the Nomination of Woodrow Wilson.

Washington, D. C., June 10. [Special.]—No one incident in the entire pre-convention campaign has attracted more attention than did the powerful editorial declaration of the New York World in favor of the nomination of Gov. Woodrow Wilson at the Baltimore convention. The editorial was discussed to the exclusion of most every other subject by Democrats at the Capitol, who recognized in it the most powerful appeal that has been made in favor of the nomination of any of the Democratic candidates for the Presidency.

Party leaders have come to a realization of the fact that Governor Wilson is the candidate whose nomination at Baltimore will mean certain success. The vote in Ohio, where Governor Wilson was given an almost even break with Governor Harmon in the election of district delegates, started the tide in the direction of Governor Wilson. Then came victories in Texas, the biggest Democratic state in the nation, in New Jersey, the most promising Democratic state in the East, and in Minnesota, a state which Republicans admit would give Governor Wilson its electoral vote over any man that can be nominated at Chicago. Governor Wilson's strength in every section of the country has been well demonstrated, but as The World so clearly points out he is the one Democrat who can appeal to the independent voters in Eastern states like New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Maine, whose support is essential to Democratic success.

It is the opinion of Representative A. Mitchell Palmer and other wise Democrats in Pennsylvania, that Woodrow Wilson would stand a good chance of carrying that state if nominated. Both United States Senator Gardner and Representative McGillicuddy, of Maine, give it as their deliberate opinion that Governor Wilson can carry Maine against Roosevelt or any Republican. Governor Wilson's strength is confined to no section; it is nation wide.

Can Carry Maine

Representative McGillicuddy of Maine, who is a delegate to the Baltimore convention, said of The World editorial:

"The World editorial is unanswerable, and will have great influence with the delegates to the Baltimore convention. Not only would Governor Wilson carry New Jersey and New York, but he would win in Maine against any man the Republican convention at Chicago can nominate."

B. H. S. ALUMNI

Hold Annual Banquet at Waverly Hotel.

About forty members attended the annual banquet of the Bedford High School Alumni Association held at the Waverly Hotel Thursday evening of last week.

The dining room was tastefully decorated with potted plants, flowers, etc.

William E. Beam, President of the Association, acted as toastmaster. A response was made by Miss Rose Lutz, valedictorian of this year's graduating class. Miss Vesta Brightbill gave a pleasing recitation and several impromptu talks were made by other members.

Music was furnished by the Bedford Orchestra, which was appreciated, and with the good menu served the occasion was made an enjoyable one.

McCole-O'Connor

James McCole, a wealthy farmer and land owner of Tilden, Nebr., and Mrs. Rose Hughes O'Connor, a daughter of the late John Hughes and a sister of Patrick Hughes, a well-known distiller of this place, were united in marriage at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning by Rev. Father William E. Downes in St. Thomas' Catholic Church. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the immediate family of the bride, and after a wedding breakfast, the couple left on the 8:57 a. m. train on a wedding trip, after which they will leave for their western home.

CUBAN REBELS ACTIVE

Federals Accused of Cutting Off Ears of Prisoners.

The written threat of the rebel leader Estenoz to attack and burn Guantanamo, where the main body of the American marines are encamped, and tales of atrocities committed by the Federals against prisoners, have tightened up the Cuban situation.

Estenoz is thought to be in earnest in his threat to assail Guantanamo and thus bring the revolution to a crisis at once. For two nights, the State Department learns, scattering shots have fallen in the headquarters of Lieutenant Colonel Lucas, of the marines in Guantanamo town. The naval station near Guantanamo has not been molested.

The marines in Guantanamo are being held ready for instant action as are the Cuban Federal troops under Colonel Machado. A general attack on Guantanamo, such as Estenoz has threatened in a letter to the mayor of the town, in the opinion of the officials at Washington, would certainly be followed by an order sending the American expeditionary force of 5,000 regular infantry to the island at once.

Stories afloat in Washington that the Cuban regulars are mutilating prisoners by cutting off their ears, cause the State Department officials no little worry. The United States as the recognized guardian of Cuba, feels that it can not tolerate uncivilized warfare in Cuba.

Friday Evening's Lecture

One of the most brilliant lecturers ever brought before a Bedford audience was that of Mrs. Addie B. Parsels of Philadelphia, who spoke in the Methodist Church last Friday evening, June 7, on the real issue of the day—Temperance.

Mrs. Parsels lectured under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. From the standpoint of the individual, the Christian citizen in his political attitude toward present day reforms, the church with her responsibility in the solution of these problems, and the various organizations at work for the securing of National Prohibition, Mrs. Parsels reasoned with most convincing argument, and swayed her audience with magnetic power.

Calls have come from various parts of the county for the return of Mrs. Parsels during the summer months and arrangements are being made, announcement of which will appear later.

Points-Amos

On Wednesday at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia, George Points, Esq., and Miss Mary E. Amos, both of Bedford, were united in marriage by Rev. W. V. Ganoe, their pastor.

Mr. Points is a son of the late Moses A. Points and a member of the Bedford Bar. Miss Amos is a daughter of the late Josiah Amos and for nearly twenty years has been an efficient employee of the First National Bank, having resigned her position as Assistant Cashier a few days ago.

Smith-Holden

The arrival here last evening of Mrs. Corie H. Smith was something of a surprise to Mr. Smith's friends, as few but the immediate members of his family knew of his marriage in New York City on April 22 to Miss Ruth Madeline Holden.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. George H. Holden, a prominent merchant of New York City. She is a graduate of Smith College and an attractive and accomplished young woman.

Mr. Smith is a son of Mrs. John O. Smith and is well and favorably known. He is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College and is possessed of more than ordinary business ability.

The Gazette rejoices at Corie's seeing the error of his former mode of living and extends congratulations to him and his bride.

The 85th anniversary of her birth was made pleasant for Mrs. Ellen Cessna, widow of the late Hon. John Cessna, last Saturday by the arrival of beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends.

Rev. John H. Zinn, formerly pastor of the St. Clairsville Charge of the Evangelical Lutheran Church and now of Osterburg, had the degree of Doctor of Divinity conferred on him at the recent commencement of the Susquehanna University.

DELEGATES SEATED

The Republican Committee at Chicago Has Recognized

FOR TAFT 141, ROOSEVELT 1

Of the Contesting Delegates—Charges and Counter Charges of Bribery and Corruption Made.

At the meeting of the Republican Committee at Chicago this week the contests in Arizona, California, Louisiana, Michigan and Mississippi were thrown into the "crusher" with the following results: Seated for Taft, Arizona, 6; California, 2; Louisiana, 20; Mississippi, 6; Michigan, 6; total, 40. For Roosevelt, 0. Total of contestants seated for Taft to date, 141; for Roosevelt, 1.

With the specific charge that "a well defined effort is on foot to buy the presidential nomination for Theodore Roosevelt," Director McKinley of the National Taft Bureau, got into the game on Wednesday and set the two factions warring.

Senator Dixon, for Roosevelt, instantly came back with these words: "This charge is a common, ordinary, cheap, ineffective campaign lie."

Ten minutes later, Dr. Henry W. Coe, chairman of the Oregon Roosevelt League, announced that one delegate from his state had been delegated ten convention tickets, quoted at $100 cash, and a good government job if he would give his vote to Taft.

After that charges and counter charges of bribery and corruption occupied so much of the delegation's time that no one paid the slightest attention to the work of the National Committee which filed in the time by throwing forty delegates claimed by Roosevelt from the temporary roll call of the convention.

The McKinley statement was suppressed for a change shortly after it went forth. The original statement after charging that money had been sent by telegraph to two Taft delegates, contained this addition:

"Following which the two delegates changed from Taft to Roosevelt in a statement issued by Senator Dixon, Mr. Roosevelt's national campaign manager."

Mr. McKinley evidently considered this passage a little too rough for when the statement was reissued, it was stricken out. Some of his assistants, including Boss Barnes of New York, were not in full accord with him, deeming the charges of corruption inside the party as too

WILSON MAKES HIT

In Address to Physicians at Atlantic City.

The following brief address of Gov. Woodrow Wilson to the American Medical Association at the annual session held at Atlantic City recently called forth enthusiastic applause from the medical men:

"You have come here as investigators, and I want to assure you that Atlantic City is becoming accustomed to being investigated."

"In modern social life, as in surgery, there is a great deal to be cut out. In the present day politics the entry of a man or party into a contest may be said to be aprognosis, and the platform upon which that man or party stands may be likened to a diagnosis. It is then, that we reach the most delicate part of the operation, but it is much easier for you to get at the root of the evil than it is for the man who wanders about seeking the cause of social ills."

"At the present time the country is showing indications of what we might call violent hysteria, and we do not seem able to stop it. I would suggest that you hurry home immediately after the conclusion of your work here and aid in calming the 'National patient,' even though you do not bring about a cure. The campaign of passion now being waged in this land is, I think, most dangerous, and those responsible for it might be likened to the quacks and charlatans in your profession who kill more than they cure."

"You are more than physicians and advisers of individuals. You are guardians of communities, and within your care are the morals, as well as the physical welfare of your patients. It is for you, then, to aid in the elimination of this hostility and friction and to restore sweetness and light that we may solve the big problems with which we are confronted."

George Slack

George Slack, one of Schellsburg's oldest citizens and a veteran of the Civil War, died at his home on June 4 of diseases incident to old age, aged 78 years, five months and 10 days.

He is survived by the following children: Mrs. Annie E. Culp, Thomas H., Theophilus and Charles Slack, and Mrs. J. R. Kinzey, all of Schellsburg. Two sisters also survive: Mrs. Margaret Beneigh of Schellsburg and Mrs. Jane Darr of Kansas.

Mr. Slack was a carpenter by trade. He was a member of the 99th Pa. Vol. Inf. in the Civil War. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. for many years, having been a charter member of Schellsburg Lodge, No. 870.

The funeral services were held in the Reformed Church at Schellsburg and were conducted by Rev. C. Gumbert. The service of the I. O. O. F. was used at the grave. Interment was made in the Union Cemetery.

Samuel Straightiff

Samuel Straightiff, a veteran of the Civil War, died at the home of his son, Jacob Straightiff, in Altoona Wednesday morning of bronchial pneumonia after a short illness. He was born in Huntingdon County on June 16, 1834, where he resided a number of years. He afterwards lived in this county, at Robinsonville and in Bedford Township. He was a lifelong member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

His wife died about eight years ago. Six sons and one daughter survive: Harry of Minnesota, Albert of West Virginia, Benjamin of Woodbury, Daniel of Clearfield, Jacob and Ezekiah of Altoona, and Mrs. E. Snyder of Clearville. Interment will be made at Robinsonville this morning.

$3.50 RECIPE FREE, FOR WEAK MEN

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 3584 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

He Wasn't an Angel.

During one of the earlier discussions of the United States tariff in the Canadian parliament, an opposition member characterized the attitude of the government on the question as "a slight that would make angels weep and jackasses laugh." The Hon. Frank Oliver, who was then minister of the interior, replied, with his usual deliberate calmness: "I have observed that the honorable gentleman has been one of those who laughed."

Deep Childish Reasoning.

Father (to Margery, who has been a long time fetching the newspaper)—When you're asked to do anything, Margery, you should always run. Margery—Yes, I will, daddy; except, of course, I can't when my legs ache. Father—Rubbish; your legs never ache. Margery (indignantly)—Hoo! what's the use of the word "ache," then?—Punch.

Shaving Among the Ancients.

Shaving was practiced among the Egyptians early in the eighteenth century before Christ. The first mention of it in the Scriptures is in Genesis, where Joseph made a hasty toilet when called to go before the king and "shaved himself." Nearly a century later shaving the head is mentioned. Ezekiel (B. C. 595) alludes to the "barber's razor."

Proverbs Little Changed.

The well-known old proverb, "One swallow does not make a spring," is indigenous to England, Germany and Russia, but in the sunny south it takes the form, "One flower does not make a garland." In Italy we find, "He who grasps all gets less;" in France, "He who embraces too much binds badly," and in Northern Europe, "Grasp all, lose all."

DOUBLY PROVEN

Gazette Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This grateful citizen testified long ago. Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed. Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit. Mrs. W. H. Weller, Clarence St., Hyndman, Pa., says: "I had nearly all the symptoms that accompany a bad case of kidney complaint. My back ached constantly and I was often tired and dizzy. When a friend recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me, I commenced their use and it required the contents of only two boxes to effect a cure. I am now in good health and I have every reason to believe that Doan's Kidney Pills have effected a permanent cure." (Statement given October 12, 1907.)

Confirmed Proof

Mrs. Weller was interviewed again some time ago and she said: "The relief Doan's Kidney Pills gave me has been permanent. I willingly confirm all I have previously said in praise of this preparation."

Luck of the Cross Eyed Cat
Or, the Omen of Bad Luck
By CLARISSA MACKIE

"Where did it come from?" demanded Bob Sabin, boss of the logging camp.

The camp cook waved a floury hand in midair. "Search me," he said frankly. "Here I sat making these here biscuits when all of a sudden my eyes felt queer and I looked up to see that critter staring at me big as life. I swan it give me a turn to look at it."

"I never saw a cross eyed cat before," remarked Sabin, surveying the large black, lean looking feline which had appeared in camp that morning. The cat had been washing its face industriously, but under Sabin's steady scrutiny it suddenly ceased its labors and stared back at him uncannily.

The right eye was large and yellow, with dilating black pupil in its proper place, but the left orb was marred by a decided cast. In fact, the pupil of the eye manifested a desire to disappear entirely behind the animal's nose.

"I wonder if it means bad luck?" mused Sabin. Later in the day Sabin remembered the cross eyed cat, and with a thought to the ingrained superstitions of some of his men and the unnecessary talk that would be exchanged among them, to the detriment of their work, he ordered Smith, a newcomer, to carry the cat to where the highway crossed a little section of woods wherein they were working and there leave the cat.

Glad of any relief from the tedium of hauling logs to the river bank, young Smith picked up the black cat and carried it, unresisting, into the shadow of the woods. An hour later he returned to say that he had left the black cat sitting in the middle of the highway.

"Gave me a creepy feeling down the spine as I walked away," he remarked at supper, "and I turned and looked back, and I know you won't believe what I'm going to tell you," he concluded hastily.

"Oh, yes, we will," chorused his companions. "Fire ahead, Smithy!"

"I turned and looked back, and by cricky, boys, that cat had shifted her position so that she was looking after me with them crossed eyes of hers, and I never want to see a more evil smile on anybody's face than there was on hers."

"Huh!" "A cat smile?" "Ain't you going it ruther strong, Smithy?"

"Remember this ain't no 'Alice in Wonderland' party," protested another. Amid the chorus of gibes Bob Sabin's clear voice startled them into silence.

"If you don't believe Smith, just look there, boys," he said quietly.

There was silence as the eight men turned and looked at the spot which he had indicated. There, on the edge of the timber growth, sat the black, cross eyed cat, an evil smile curving her wide mouth.

"Good heavens! I'm not going to have that thing around here!" ejaculated Peterson, springing from his chair. "What are you going to do?" he was asked.

"Fill her full of lead," he announced ominously.

But there was a murmur of protest from his companions. Sabin watched them curiously, noting the element of superstition that tinged their handling of this matter. His men were composed of Americans, Swedes and French Canadians, and of them all the Frenchmen were the most excitable.

"Ah, m'sieu," appealed Jean Fabrois to his boss, "pray let us not harm ze evil eyed cat! None of us have too much of ze good fortune to take ze reek. I myself will take her gently away and lose her."

"That's the best plan, Peterson," said Sabin, with a nod toward the man who was seeking his gun. Peterson was disappointed and came back to the table.

"There's only one way you can lose that cat," he grumbled. Young Smith nodded his head. "She certainly came back!" he ejaculated. "What will you do, Jean?"

"Ah, take her in ze darkness and lose her forever in ze tangle of woods on ze other side of ze river," rattled the Frenchman gayly.

"That's a good idea, Jean," commended Sabin, rising from the table. "Take the small boat and be back as soon as possible. We can't let a cat interfere with our work in the morning. It's an important matter that we get this lot down without delay."

"Oul, m'sieu," responded Jean Fabrois as he suddenly swooped down upon the cross eyed cat and caught it dexterously in his large hands. As he disappeared in the direction of the rippling river his comrades exchanged smiles of amusement and concern.

"Her vill come back," said Larsen, the big Swede, as he pushed heavily away from the table.

"I'll give her three times to come back. The last time will be my turn," warned Peterson ominously.

Next day the big drive occurred, and Sabin and a number of picked men went down to Double forks hoping to avert a repetition of the trouble of the previous year. The river was running full, for the spring freshets had added their share to the brimbling stream.

The logs came down a roaring, tumbling chaos of blackness, now and then tossing out a dark arm as the pressure from behind became heavier. Sabin, tall and muscular and handsome, stood on the east bank of the river at the forks and watched the logs crowding around the bend. On either bank his men were strung along with poles, standing ready to risk life and limb the instant necessity called for it. All wore rough corduroy clothing and long hip boots.

"If this lot gets through all right we'll be safe this time," muttered Sabin to young Smith, who stood close beside him.

They looked upstream where the white foam bubbled around a mass of tumbling logs. It was a great sight, especially when a log was tossed twenty feet in the air to come crashing down upon its fellows in the water. The two men were so interested in the sight of the approaching logs that they did not realize at first what had happened when Peterson's voice was megaphoned across the river.

"Jam there!" he yelled. "Jam!"

Sabin looked. It was true. Across the river directly in front of them and at its narrowest point the logs had jammed into a wall that momentarily grew wider as more logs were added as they floated down.

Somewhere in that maze of tree trunks was one log that formed the key to the situation. Locate that log and pry it loose and the wall would be broken. Then the rest of the drive would follow like a flock of sheep.

Sabin frowned and swore a little. There was a chorus of indignant yells as suddenly there broke from the woods on the west bank of the river a lean, black streak that shot out in one flying leap and landed on one of the logs that formed the lower end of the barrier.

"The cross eyed cat!" yelled Peterson through the megaphone. Then he danced angrily up and down as he continued: "I knew it would bring us bad luck, Mr. Sabin. If I can borrow a gun I'd like to knock it into flinders! May I?"

"Don't be a fool, Peterson!" shouted back his employer. "One of you fellows get out there and start that jam, and I guess the cat will get all that's coming to him."

There was a moment's conference among the men on the west bank, and then Peterson leaped to the nearest of the closely packed logs and made his way cautiously toward the outer edge of the jam. He carried a gun.

All at once the lumbermen met with another surprise. From the same point in the woods from whence had come the cross eyed cat there darted a girl's slender form. She wore a red cloak, and a red knitted cap was tossed on the back of her wind blown dark hair. She looked neither to the left or right. Her gaze seemed transfixed upon the small black form of the cross eyed cat and the gun in Peterson's hand.

Almost on the heels of Peterson she leaped fearlessly to the floating logs and then darted from one to another until she panted close behind Peterson's big form. The boss lumberman on the shore watched her with panic stricken eyes. If the jam should break, as it might any instant, what chance would that frail girl have among the grinding logs? Peterson, big and strong as he was, realized that he was taking a chance in trying to break the jam.

"Coward!" cried the girl, her voice ringing clearly above the boiling of the water among the logs. As she spoke she snatched Peterson's gun from his nerveless hand and fung it into the stream. Then she leaped to the enormous pine log on which the cross eyed cat sat and clasped the uncanny creature in her arms. Then she arose and for the first time seemed to realize the situation.

Her life was not worth an instant's purchase if the jam broke. She turned terror stricken eyes toward Peterson, who indulged in one of his fierce fits of anger, laughed contemptuously at her and leisurely picked his way over the logs, pretending to scrutinize each one—searching for the key log that would break the jam.

Sabin watched the two for one long minute. Then, with an indrawn breath of mingled rage and fear, he set his foot on the nearest log and went to the rescue of the girl. As he lifted her fainting form in his arms, together with the black cat, which she still carried wrapped in the folds of her red cloak, he left the great pine log on which the cross eyed cat had deigned to sit. Sabin's foot had barely left the log when it shivered slightly.

"The key log—she's breaking now!" shouted Sabin and raced for the nearest shore.

As he stumbled up the river bank with his double load of lovely girl and cross eyed black cat there came a crashing boom from the river as the jam broke and the logs went thundering down to their destination.

After beautiful Maisie Woods had departed for home with her lost pet—yes, the cross eyed black cat—big Peterson approached the lumber boss shamefacedly enough.

"I suppose you'll want me to hand in my time, sir," he muttered. "It's all the luck of that cross eyed cat."

"Nonsense!" returned Sabin brightly, a happy light in his dark eyes. "Stay on, Peterson, and try to remember that the cross eyed cat broke the jam, after all. If anybody can show me a better mascot than a cross eyed black cat I'd like to be shown."

After Sabin had married Maisie Woods and had become part owner of the black cat they understood what he meant.

BALDHEADS

More Women are Bald Than Men, Says Authority.

This is a startling statement but it's true according to an article published in a standard magazine this year.

One thing is certain PARISIAN SAGE will surely prevent baldness by stopping the hair from falling, but it won't grow hair after the head is bald.

Ladies, look after your hair, destroy the dandruff germs with PARISIAN SAGE and dandruff will disappear. It stops scalp itch over night and is guaranteed to be the most refreshing, refined and agreeable hair dressing that can be obtained. Sold by F. W. Jordan and druggists all over America for 50 cents.

"My hair was falling out, and I was clogged up, are inflamed or congested no benefit until I tried PARISIAN SAGE."—Mrs. George Thunder, R. F. D. 5, Marshall, Mich.

Floating Cannery.

A new phase of scientific management has been put into operation out on our progressive Pacific coast by the conversion of the good old ship Glory of the Seas into a floating cannery of salmon. There is the whole proceedings right on one floating spot—catching, cleaning, cooking, canning, boxing and then, when the hold is full of the season's pack of cases, a tow of the factory into port and the market.

'Tis Often So.

"I hope, sir," said the minor actor, "that I filled my part competently." "That is a consideration of no importance," replied the star. "Like the other members of the supporting cast, you are here simply to provide a comparison that will make the audience appreciate the excellence of my acting."

THEY PUT AN END TO IT

Charles Sable, 30 Cook St., Rochester, N. Y., says he recommends Foley Kidney Pills at every opportunity because they gave him prompt relief from a bad case of kidney trouble that had long bothered him. Such a recommendation, coming from Mr. Sable, is direct and convincing evidence of the great curative qualities of Foley Kidney Pills. E. D. Heckerman.

Pleasant for Papa.

"So," said the indulgent father, "young Mr. Nerve wants to take you away from me." "O! yes," replied the dear girl, "but he says he'll bring me back after the wedding journey. He has decided that we shall board with you."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Old City Well Uncovered.

A well that probably supplied the early inhabitants of Sydney, N. S. W., with water has been found by workmen engaged in the demolition of premises in Oxford street. The well has a depth of 30 feet, and contained when opened about 25 feet of water. The bricks are hand made and dovetailed, no mortar being used in placing them in position. The top of the well is covered with some ironbark slabs.

THIS IS IMPORTANT

Ed. D. Heckerman Desires to Announce That He is the Agent for Thompson's Barosma, the Money-Back Kidney and Liver Cure.

There are hundreds of people, young and old, right here in Bedford who are taking medicines for various ailments, who do not even suspect that the kidneys are to blame.

These sufferers do not know that in all probability their kidneys are all troubled with itching scalp. I received, and are unable to properly filter the impurities from the blood.

It is the kidneys that keep the blood pure, and if the kidneys are not in good condition, disease of other organs of the body will surely develop.

Thompson's Barosma will cure any disease of the kidneys, or Ed. D. Heckerman will give you your money back.

If you are in ill health now, and are not absolutely certain of the cause, get a 50-cent bottle of Thompson's Barosma at Ed. D. Heckerman's today. It will make you feel better in a day. It will tone up your kidneys, liver and bladder in a week.

It is the best investment you can make. It is worthy of a trial on our guaranteed plan. Ask for Thompson's Barosma. The dollar bottle contains more than twice as much as the fifty-cent size.

COLORS OF THE RAINBOW.

They Vary According to the Size of the Raindrops.

Violet, indigo blue, green, yellow, orange, red—the colors of the rainbow. Any child knows that, and the high school pupil can refer you to half a dozen textbooks to prove it. It is true, however, of only a very few rainbows, as C. Fitzhugh Talman demonstrates in the Scientific American.

The colors of rainbows vary with their width, and their width varies with the size of the raindrops, big drops producing narrow bows with bright, clearly defined colors, small drops producing wide bows with pale colors.

Here are the colors as generally seen: (1) When the raindrops average one millimeter in diameter, violet, light blue, bluish green, green, yellow, orange, light red, dark red; (2) when the drops average three-tenths of a millimeter in diameter, violet, light blue, bluish green, green, yellow, orange; (3) when the drops average one-tenth of a millimeter, very pale violet, violet, whitish blue, whitish green, whitish yellow, pale yellow; (4) when the drops average one-twentieth of a millimeter (fog), white tinged with violet, bright white, white tinged with yellow, very pale yellow.

SIGNAL MESSAGES.

Beacon Fires Were First Used, and Then Came Semaphores.

Signal fire telegraphing, with its very limited scope of information contained, seems to have been about the only means of communicating quickly across distances until relatively modern times.

It was not until the days of the French revolution that any material improvement over the beacon fire telegraph developed. Three brothers named Chappe devised the semaphore telegraph. This system got into active operation in 1794, and the first real message ever spelled out and telegraphed across country was in that year, and the text was as follows:

"Conde is taken from the Austrians."

The same day the national convention, sitting in Paris, sent back the following reply to the army:

"The army of the north deserves the gratitude of the country."

The semaphore operators attained a speed of three letters a minute in fine weather, with an average of one a minute over long distance. This made necessary the invention of condensed codes, which came into fashion.—New York Telephone Review.

Nerve Rewarded.

"Now, Billy," said the young man's father, "I've found a fine job for you—a job which will, if you attend strictly to business, give you a splendid chance to rise."

"What is the nature of the job?"

"You've seen some of the big buildings in course of construction, haven't you?"

"Yes."

"Have you ever noticed how the great iron beams are lifted in their places?"

"Sure."

"Well, a friend of mine, who is a contractor, has agreed to use you to stand on the beams and balance them as they are hoisted. I told him about the splendid nerve you had exhibited in sitting around and permitting me to support you, and he agreed that you would be just the man for the job."—Chicago Record-Herald.

His Profession.

Mr. Justice Lawrence was once passing sentence on a man, and in the course of his preliminary remarks he referred to him as "a professional burglar."

The prisoner raised loud protests from the dock.

"Here," he exclaimed, "I dunno wot you mean by callin' me a professional burglar. I've only done it once before, an' I've bin nabbed both times."

Mr. Justice Lawrence beamed upon him.

"Oh, I did not mean to say," he remarked in his most suave manner, "that you had been very successful in your profession."—London Answers.

A Practical Query.

My little boy stood, open mouthed, while a friend elaborated the details of a sudden death. The patient had not been considered very seriously ill, and his nurse entered, bringing a baked potato for which the sick man had expressed a wish. "But," said my friend, "before he had tasted it he died." I deprecated the sadness of such recital before the child, but I need not have feared. His baby voice piped out: "And what became of the potato?"—Harper's Magazine.

Only Officers.

Corporal (to soldier reporting sick)—What's the matter with you? Tommy—Pain in my abdomen. Corporal—Abdomen! Abdomen, indeed! You don't have no abdomen; you have a stomach. It's only the officers what 'as abdomens.—London Punch.

Your Lungs and Throat.
The preparation mentioned by the Rev. Chas. Sager has been for over sixty years of innumerable worth to sufferers from consumption, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, grippe, coughs, colds and all lung and throat diseases, and is a household remedy in many, many homes to which it has brought health and happiness.
August 1st, 1905.
Mr. C. A. ABBOTT,
60 Ann St., New York City.
Dear Sir: I have known for over 40 years of the effects of Wilson's Remedy (Fowler's Preparation of Hypophosphites and Blood) in cases of pulmonary troubles. At this point I will say to you what you have not before known of; that 40 years since, while I was a resident of N. Y. City, I was severely ill with lung trouble. Physicians said I was a consumptive and my family physician told my wife that he thought I could not recover. My attention was directed to the Wilson Remedy, which I used with splendid effect. I have been on my feet and at work ever since my cure. Yours truly,
REV. CHAS. SAGER,
Pastor M. E. Church, Hunter, (Greene Co.) N. Y.
The above letter shows what a great boon the Wilson Remedy was to Mr. Sager, but it is but one of thousands received testifying to the curative powers of this wonderful remedy. Write at once to Mr. Abbott at the above address and he will furnish you convincing proof of the great worth to humanity of this preparation.

GREENLAND'S ICEBERGS.

Their Progress Southward Lasts From February Till August.

Those monsters of menace to navigation, icebergs, are formed from huge pieces broken from the glaciers of the north, which the Arctic currents carry southward until they melt away in the warmer waters of the gulf stream. The terrible procession begins in February, and not until the end of August is the ice season supposed to be over in the north Atlantic.

Each year brings its regular reports of thrilling sights and collisions and losses in the ice fields from the incoming steamers during the spring and summer months. Certain years stand out as unusually bad ice years, but the general story is much the same. Once, during the month of May, 143 icebergs were sighted off Cape Race in a single day.

One of the largest icebergs on record towered 830 feet above the surface of the sea. As hardly more than one-tenth of the berg is out of water, this would mean a mass of ice 7,000 feet (one and one-third miles) from top to bottom. Its volume was calculated to be about 580,000,000 cubic feet and its weight some 16,000,000 tons!

Icebergs need not be extraordinarily high to be stupendous. Lieutenant Peary reported a berg 12,500 feet long (over two and one-half miles), 11,000 feet wide and 186 feet high. It was estimated to weigh 1,292,398,000 tons. Another measured farther north contained 27,000,000,000 cubic feet of ice and weighed no less than 2,000,000,000 tons.—New York World.

BOGUS GEMS.

Imitation Diamonds of Paste Are the Best Counterfeits.

It is always wise when buying a white topaz to purchase it from a reliable dealer, inasmuch as rock crystal and even lead glass are often sold under that name.

Colorless beryl yields a very brilliant and diamond-like stone when properly cut. Indeed, many gems and even phenacite and rock crystal often passed in former days as diamonds, even under the scrutiny of experts, such exact tests as refraction and specific gravity being unknown until comparatively recent years.

No imitation of the diamond, however, is so brilliant as a skillfully cut piece of the kind of lead glass known in the trade as "paste." The play of color in these counterfeits is often very beautiful, but the glass "diamond" possesses no luster, this term being applied to the light reflected from the top surfaces of a gem. The flashes of light and color that give brilliancy come from the interior, being thrown from the rear surfaces of the stone.

The glass diamond is soft and is attacked chemically by a number of things with which it comes in contact by wear, for both of which reasons it soon becomes dulled.—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

He Spoke to Her.

A Virginia farmer was driving a refractory cow down the road one morning. The cow and the driver came to a crossroad. The man wanted the cow to go straight ahead, but the cow picked out the crossroad. A negro was coming along the crossroad.

"Haid her off! Haid her off!" yelled the driver.

The negro jumped about the road and waved his arms. The cow proceeded calmly on her way.

"Haid her off! Haid her off, nigger!" yelled the driver.

"It's a-tryin' ter!" replied the negro.

"Speak to her! Speak to her and she'll stop!"

"Good mawnin', cow—good mawnin'!" said the negro politely.—Saturday Evening Post.

When You Crack Your Hat.

If you are ever unfortunate enough to smash a new derby hat, so that it cracks and in spite of vigorous rubbing and brushing refuses to resume its pristine smoothness of surface, try the simple expedient of holding a lighted match inside the hat close to the broken spot. By the time the match has half burned out you will find that the hat has become soft. If you will then brush it vigorously with a stiff brush for a moment it will regain its former smoothness and look as if nothing had ever marred its surface.—New York Sun.

Married the Family.

When Lafcadio Hearn married his Japanese wife all his wife's family accompanied him to his new quarters. He mentions that he had nine lives dependent upon him—wife, wife's mother, wife's father, wife's adopted mother, wife's father's father, then servants and a Buddhist student. This wouldn't do in England, but it is nothing in Japan.—"Lafcadio Hearn—His Life and Work," by Nina H. Kennard.

The Daffodil.

The poison of the daffodil is the plant's means of defense. How effective it is may be judged by the fact that rabbits, rats and other small pests which devour hyacinths and crocuses with gusto leave the daffodil severely alone.

A MUCH-USED BLUFF

The nation has been somewhat exercised for some days over the action of the Republican Committee in session in Chicago in keeping the names of Roosevelt contesting delegates from the temporary roll for the convention next week.

It was but natural to suppose that there was ground for the contests in behalf of the loud, great advocate of the "square deal" or they would not be made, but now that the truth has been told it is revealed that the whole series of contests made up a gigantic bluff, the purpose of which was to influence voters in states that had not yet selected delegates to the Chicago convention.

This revelation was made by the Washington Times, owned by Mr. Roosevelt's friend, Frank A. Munsey, in the following article:

"For psychological effect, as a move in practical politics, it was necessary for the Roosevelt people to start contests on these early Taft selections in order that a tabulation of delegate strength could be put out that would show Roosevelt holding a good hand in the game. A table showing 'Taft, 150; Roosevelt, 19; contested, none,' would not be very much calculated to inspire confidence, whereas one showing, 'Taft, 23; Roosevelt, 19; contested, 127,' looked very different.

"That is the whole story of the larger number of Southern contests that were started early in the game. It was never expected that they would be taken very seriously; they served a useful purpose, and now the National Committee is deciding them in favor of Taft—in most cases without real division."

It seems well authenticated that the Colonel enlisted the services of and sent South the same McHarg who had publicly declared him (Roosevelt) to be "the most dangerous character in American politics and a man who could with difficulty be got out of the Presidency if he once got back into it."

Now that these fake contestants are thrown out, and for the most part by unanimous vote of the committee, after they had "served a useful purpose" in securing votes in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and New Jersey and other states, there seems to be no necessity for the Colonel to use the expressions "felony," "naked theft," "robbery," etc., to designate the action of the committee.

This same bluff has oft been repeated in politics, and history is full of "pretenders."

Has the "square deal" doctrine come to mean "the end justifies the means?"

HECKERMAN LETTER

Conditions in the Coal Regions—Paving Streets.

Mt. Carmel, June 11, 1912.

This is a pretty town or city with some 20,000 people within its limits and many more in patches about who come to Mt. Carmel to trade.

I am told that two-thirds of those old enough to join a church are Catholics and that nine-tenths of the entire population are foreign born. Many of the churches are most beautiful to behold. Three banks do the laborious work of handling the cash for those who have money to deposit as well as those who might want to borrow. The water comes from deep wells. From one of these flows a stream nearly as large as a flour barrel and is the main supply. The water is very good, soft and pure, the chemists say.

Schneider Brothers are the wholesale grocers. They have grown from a one-horse team to two very large motor trucks. On one of these they load five tons and they pull it up some very steep banks. On the other electric horse they load even more. Thus you see the one-horse power has grown to a mighty big concern that does business of a million a year and the boys work, each one very hard, for their business. All take an interest in Fort Bedford butter and are hale fellows well met.

Four years ago there was not a paved street in Mt. Carmel. Now the streets are about all paved and this follows good in about all the towns but Bedford. My, how I wish you would have a town meeting on the subject and let some one give the figures as to cost and then let there be a vote taken as to whether the borough will issue bonds, raise the money and have the work done before next winter. If, however, there are any who may oppose paving brick streets, then try amitte paving. It can be done and well done for $1.75 per square yard which will include excavation, curbing, etc. Amitte is being used in many places and consists of five inches of concrete with a two-inch covering of asphaltum. Just try it from Madore's corner out to Mrs. Hall's house. If you put either brick or amitte paving down on that street, Fred Metzger, Mr. Madore and the writer will guarantee to show you and your summer visitors the most beautiful street in the dear old town. Roses and flowers of rare beauty will adorn the sidewalks.

I was at a picnic at Maysville not long since. Now Maysville is about midway between Shamokin and Mt. Carmel. 'Tis on a stretch of virgin coal land owned by the Lehigh Valley Coal Company. It is several miles long and probably two to three miles wide. This is a most beautiful level place with good mountain water. It is about 800 feet high. The trolley railroad a few years ago erected large pavilions there. They furnish an orchestra to play every evening but Sunday. Dancing is free to all. Of course, there are a few rules to be observed, one of which is that gentlemen must keep their coats on, and no two men dare dance together. Two ladies dare do so but not two men. The music is first-class and the dancing was fine the evening I was there. The company leased the cafe and all outside amusement places several years ago to Harry Miller of Mt. Carmel. Harry is a prince of good fellows and has made good since in charge there. On May 30, Decoration Day, he sold 110 gallons of ice cream in five and ten cent plates. His sales average 40 gallons per day and this amount of business is done from noon until 11 at night. One can get a first-class meal there for half a dollar.

Since the strike has been settled all are as busy as can be and each and every merchant I come in contact with has a smile that doesn't wash off, thinking of how his bank account will be swollen after pay day.

The large coal banks that for many years have day by day grown and looked like young mountains are disappearing now, being washed and the small coal known as rice coal and buckwheat coal are taken out.

This fine coal now meets with ready sale while some years ago it was not considered worth looking after. This slush is then turned back into the mines to fill them up and keep the mother earth from sinking.

Please send me papers to Windsor Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., and oblige
Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Communication From Correspondent at National Capital

A GIGANTIC PETITION

To Regulate Operation of Panama Canal—Not Ready to Adjourn—To Print Constitution.

Washington, D. C., June 8.—In all probability the bill regulating the operation of the Panama Canal will be reported out of the Senate Committee on Inter-oceanic Canals, of which Senator Frank B. Brandegee of Connecticut is chairman, early next week. The committee has accorded hearings to representatives of the railroads, steamships, and commercial bodies and all others who have asked to be heard. The railroads were not given a hearing while the bill was under process of incubation in the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and consequently raised a "fog" that their interests were being jeopardized through the "log-rolling" methods of the extremists of both political parties. Rather than have this charge go to the country unchallenged, although without any foundation in fact, Senator Brandegee through the doors of his committee room open to whoever desired to enter and be heard in assisting to formulate a bill that it is sincerely hoped will show wisdom and constructive statesmanship in every line.

It is expected the bill will differ very materially from the House measure, particularly with reference to the prohibition of railroad-owned steamships operating through the canal. The free toll provision of the House bill relating to vessels engaged in the coastwise trade it is believed will remain in the Senate measure when it comes from the committee next week.

Congress Not Ready to Adjourn

The general desire expressed among the leaders to clear the way for adjournment by June 15th appears to have gone glimmering. The Lorimer case, now before the Senate, it is expected, will consume not less than two weeks. The accused Senator will make a desperate fight for his seat, and it goes without saying that he has friends in that body, whose own reputation being impugned, will stand by him persistently. Consequently it looks as though midsummer will find Congress still in session and not inclined to adjournment until the weather becomes oppressively warm. By that time the political national conventions will have nominated their tickets and the great campaign of 1912 will be in progress.

Laugh on Senator Smoot

It was just mere force of habit that led to placing Senator Smoot in an embarrassing situation in the Senate the other day. Senator Smoot is chairman of the Joint Committee on Printing, and in this capacity he is very careful to be informed of the nature of documents offered on the floor for printing before he allows the Senate to authorize it. Senator Clark of Wyoming has suggested that a copy of the United States Constitution be printed in the Record. Senator Smoot's attention was centered on some other matter at the time the Wyoming man made his request, and he caught only the words "to be printed."

"Who is the author of the document?" asked the watchful Utah statesman. A roar of laughter greeted his query. He agreed, after the matter had been explained to him, that it was a proper request to have the United States Constitution printed.

Steenerson Against Reciprocity

Representative Steenerson of Minnesota does not favor reciprocity. Neither do his constituents. Recently they sent to Senator Clapp, also from Minnesota, a petition asking for its repeal. Mr. Steenerson received a letter from the man who secured the signatures to the petition, saying that it has been sent to Senator Clapp and Mr. Steenerson could use the petition if he so desired. An opportune moment arrived in the House for Mr. Steenerson to present the petition, and he hastened to Senator Clapp's office to get it.

"There is no such petition here," declared the Senator's clerk. "The only thing we have from your correspondent is a barrel of apples that we haven't opened."

"Apples!" shouted Mr. Steenerson, who was in a hurry to get back to the floor with the document. "Nothing of the sort. That is a barrel of protests against reciprocity," whereupon Mr. Steenerson jumped on the head of the barrel with both feet, scattered the papers in which the document was wrapped around the floor, secured the document which was nearly two hundred feet long and rolled up on a stick like a map. He got back to the House Chamber in time to be recognized by the Speaker, where the petition was formally referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Representative Henry of Texas, who is a delegate-at-large to the Baltimore convention, said: "The World editorial urging the nomination of Woodrow Wilson is the greatest that has been written in years, and will have much influence with every Democrat who has the success of the party at heart. The World has pointed the way to success, and I believe when the delegates assemble at Baltimore they will seize the opportunity to nominate the New Jersey executive, who can defeat any man the Republicans nominate."

Representative Goodwin of Arkansas, said: "The World has done the Democracy a distinct service in so ably directing attention to opportunity for victory in November. Governor Wilson is the strongest man the party can nominate. He would not only poll the normal Democratic vote, but he can command the great independent vote of the nation, without which the Democracy can not hope to win in this contest."

Senator Chamberlain of Oregon said: "The World splendidly stated the case in behalf of Governor Wilson, and everything that it said is true. The force of that editorial expression will have great weight with every Democrat. Governor Wilson is the candidate whose nomination will mean almost certain success at the polls. He is not so progressive that he can not command the support of conservative thinking people, and advocates of progressive legislation would surely give him their support. I believe Governor Wilson will be nominated, because he can defeat either Roosevelt or Taft, and for that matter any man whom the Republicans nominate."

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, who served in former President Cleveland's cabinet, said: "The World editorial compelled the attention of Democrats everywhere. It is a strong and persuasive presentation of Governor Wilson's cause."

Can Win With Wilson

Senator Gore, who is a delegate-at-large from Oklahoma to the Baltimore convention, said: "The announcement of The World in favor of Governor Wilson is a great accession to the Governor's strength, not only on account of The World's influence, but because it is an index to the thoughts and feelings, and probable action of a most influential section of the press of the United States. If Wilson is nominated, the independent press of the country will support him more generously than any other Democratic aspirant. The independent vote generally turns the scales in favor of the successful candidate. This will be preeminently true in the pending campaign. Any Democratic nominee will, of course, secure that large and invaluable vote that is always loyal to the ticket. The several candidates have an equal title to this vote, but this is not sufficient to insure success. Underwood is stronger in the East than Clark, but Wilson is as strong or stronger in the East than Underwood. Clark is stronger in the West than Underwood, but Wilson is as strong or stronger in the West than Clark. He is stronger with the independent vote everywhere than either of them. He will be stronger with the disaffected Republican vote, whose tribe the Lord seems to be increasing, than either Underwood or Clark. In the last four campaigns we have had the best platforms, the best principles, the best causes, and the best candidates, and everything else excepting votes, and I might add, campaign funds.

"Wilson is neither radical nor erratic. He is neither as revolutionary as Roosevelt nor as reactionary as Taft. He is at once animated and restrained by the spirit of rational progress. He will appeal to the common sense of the American people, and suit a larger number of individual voters than any other candidate on any other ticket."

"We ought to nominate a man who can secure the requisite vote and guarantee a united and triumphant Democracy."

Know Paint

There's a paint-education in this advertisement.

But by the job, not gallon. Buy by the paint put-on; that's the job.

The price of paint is so much a gallon; that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing.

The price of painting is so much a day; that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing.

Put them together. How can you do it? You've got to or lose perhaps half of your money.

Devote 10 gallons enough for the average job; an average paint, 15. Now reckon your costs. Count labor a day for a gallon. Devote 10 days; the other 15.

Devote about $50; the average paint about $70 or $80; the dearer the labor the bigger the difference, always that way.

But that's for the job. How long is it going to last? One twice as long as the other.

They tried the same experiment with several other kinds of insects and always with the same result.

THIRD ANNUAL CONVENTION

Of the Bedford County Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The third annual convention of the Bedford County Woman's Christian Temperance Union which was held in the Presbyterian Church at Everett on Thursday and Friday, June 6 and 7, was marked by intense interest on the part of those in attendance.

The local union had planned perfectly for the entertainment of the large delegation, and promptly at 2 o'clock all was in readiness for convention opening by the county president, Miss L. D. Shuck.

The afternoon session was taken up by the usual business proceedings in reports of central and executive committees, Corresponding Secretary, Treasurer, representatives from local unions, Loyal Temperance Legion work and the appointment of committees.

All reports showed an increase in temperance activity throughout the county, an increased membership in various unions, a revival in Loyal Temperance Legion effort through new organizations effected, aggressive Mercy work done; also general department works covering Flower Mission effort, Soldiers and Sailors, County Fair, Literature, Railroad, Legislative, etc.

Addresses were made by the County President, followed by Mrs. Addie B. Parsels of Philadelphia, state lecturer and organizer, who spoke on General Department Work to the delight of all.

Thursday evening's session was a "red letter" event in county W. C. T. U. work. Following stirring music by the choir, invocation and an effective solo by Howard Lloyd, a beautiful drill was given by twenty Loyal Legioners from Schellsburg who formed the letters "W. C. T. U." and "L. T. L." in the figures, gave rally cries and sang spiritedly. They received hearty applause.

The address by Mrs. Parsels which followed was one of powerful inspiration and uplift. In it was a message for every one so presented that there was no escape from a realization of personal responsibility for any within her hearing. Seldom has a platform speaker audience before a Bedford County audience with such magnetic influence as displayed by Mrs. Parsels.

A happy close to the evening's program was the singing of "A Saloonless Nation in 1920" and a "No License Jubilee" entered into heartily by the entire delegation.

Friday morning's business session resulted in the election of the following county officers: President, Miss L. D. Shuck, Bedford; Vice President, Mrs. D. L. Hetrick, Pleasantville; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Nellie Little, Saxton; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Ettie V. Shires, Bedford; Treasurer, Mrs. A. W. Smith, Schellsburg.

The convention of 1913 will be held at Fishertown.

A great convention is ended and a righteous cause advanced in Bedford county.

Messrs. Frank Beemiller, Edwin Davidson, Ambrose Leasure and James and George Corboy, of this place, and Ross Rose, Charles Wertz and Joseph Wambaugh, of Cumberland Valley, attended the unveiling ceremonies of the Columbus Memorial in Washington, D. C., last Saturday.

Among those who attended the unveiling ceremonies of the Columbus memorial at Washington, D. C., on Saturday, June 8, were Messrs. J. L., John B. and Frank J. McLaughlin, Robert L. Fyan and J. Scott Corie. The trip was made in Mr. McLaughlin's auto. They returned Sunday via Baltimore and Frederick, Md.

A NOVEL INTRODUCTION

Dr. Howard Company Makes a Special Price.

The Dr. Howard Company have entered into an arrangement with Ed. D. Heckerman drug store, by which a special introductory offer will be made of 25 cents on the 50 cent size of their celebrated Specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia.

Headaches, coated tongue, dizziness, gas on the stomach, specks before the eyes, constipation and all forms of malaria and liver trouble are soon cured by this scientific medicine.

Ed. D. Heckerman has been able to secure only a limited supply, so every one who wishes to be cured of dyspepsia or constipation should call upon him at once or send him 25 cents by mail and get 60 doses of the best medicine ever made, on this special half price introductory offer, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if the Specific does not cure.

Wolfsburg

June 11—The Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. Levi Agnew last Wednesday evening. After the business session dainty refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening was spent by all.

Freeman Melroy, a student of Dickinson College, is home on his summer vacation. He occupied the pulpit at Burning Bush last Sunday morning.

Harry Stuckey, a student at Mercersburg Academy, is home on his summer vacation.

Mrs. J. V. Melroy spent Thursday and Friday in Everett.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Diehl spent Sunday at the home of the former's brother, Amos Diehl.

The ball game last Saturday afternoon between St. Clairsville and our boys was won by the home team—score 15-7. Next Saturday afternoon Pleasantville and our team will have a game.

Miss Cleo Pierson spent several days this week in Everett.

Mrs. D. R. Smith and Miss Anna Smith were guests on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Hester Mann.

J. J. McDevitt and B. F. Diehl visited home folks on Sunday.

Point

June 11—Mrs. Geneva Harper, a trained nurse in Davenport Hospital, Davenport, Ia., is visiting among her many relatives in Bedford County. She arrived last Wednesday at M. C. King's, who is a cousin. Mrs. Harper is a daughter of Emanuel Wertz, formerly of Bedford County, but now of Brooklyn, Ia.

R. L. Wersing, wife and son John, of Huntingdon, and Mrs. Emaline Deffenbaugh of Mann's Choice were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McIlwaine Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Wersing was raised in this community by the family of Pearson Studebaker, and Mrs. Deffenbaugh and Mrs. McIlwaine were daughters of Pearson Studebaker. Mr. Wersing made short calls on all the old residents in the community who were glad to meet him as Bob was always well thought of by everybody who knew him. He is now holding one of the most important positions of the H. and B. T. Railroad. His office is in Philadelphia, while his family resides in Huntingdon.

Wilson M. Hissong and two daughters, Elizabeth and Margaret, were visitors at the old homestead on Sunday.

John Darr and wife of Ryot were guests of Mrs. J. M. Cable on Sunday. Steven Douglas of Napier passed through this place on Monday.

There was a surprise party held in honor of Miss Margaret Shaffer last Saturday evening, which was attended by 40 of her neighbors and friends. The surprise was a success and the young lady was well pleased. All present had a good time.

John Fox, Jr., in his serial in Scribner's, "The Heart of the Hills," is depicting Kentucky life at a later decade than in his previous novels. In the July number he describes the settlement from the point of view of a mountain boy and gives glimpses of rabbit hunting and a Blue Grass Christmas.

Fishertown

June 12—Frank McCreary of Bedford Sundayed with home folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Allen, of Bedford, spent Sunday at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Allen.

Mrs. Martha Smith of Johnstown was the guest of friends here recently.

Mr. and Mrs. George Miller and children, of Morrison's Cove, spent Sunday at the home of W. D. Blackburn. They made the trip in an auto.

Rev. and Mrs. Keifer and four children and Mrs. A. H. Whetstone, of Everett, are spending a few days at the home of Mrs. Mary A. Blackburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Blackburn, of Altoona, were guests of friends here from Saturday till Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Blattenberger and Mrs. William Miller and two children, of Roaring Spring, are visiting Fishertown friends and relatives a few days.

Ellsworth Adams had a barn raising on Wednesday.

Lloyd Claycomb, Esq., of Altoona gave a fine talk Sunday morning in the Lutheran Church on the subject of "Temperance." Sorry to say the people did not turn out to hear him as they should have.

Preaching services will be held in the Lutheran Church next Sunday morning and will be conducted by Rev. H. W. Bender.

Friend's Cove

June 11—John Miller of Fishertown was here last week repairing the Friend's Cove Telephone lines. All its lines are now in first-class condition. A telephone will be installed this week at John R. Diehl's, which makes 100 phones in service for the company.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Smith, of Media, spent a few days last week at the home of Clayton Smith.

Charlesville Grange will hold a festival Saturday evening, June 15, in the P. O. S. of A. Hall at Charlesville.

Mrs. Plummer James of Bedford is visiting at the home of Elias Corle. Misses Mabel Diehl and Edna Diehl, students at Everett Normal, spent Saturday and Sunday at their homes here.

Mrs. Sarah Dibert and Miss Ethel Diehl returned home Sunday, after visiting relatives in Altoona.

H. G. Diehl left Monday morning on a week's trip through Fulton County.

New Paris

June 12—Miss Carrie Imhof of Intertown was a guest in our village on Sunday.

William Coplin and wife, of Windber, were calling on old time friends not long since.

Charles Smouse, wife and daughter Mildred, of Lutzville, spent a few days in our vicinity last week.

F. W. Cuppett and family and Miss Cleo Pierson, of Johnstown, were visitors in our village and vicinity over Sunday.

Misses Ruth Otto and Georgia Crissman and S. H. Mickel and S. T. Taylor, who attended the County Sunday School Convention at Hyndman last week, report a very pleasant time and a very successful convention.

Miss Grace Richards, Mrs. Henry Adams and Mrs. Mingle Davis attended the County Convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union held at Everett last week. They report much interest manifested in the work.

D. Lloyd Claycomb of Altoona delivered a fine lecture Sunday evening in the U. B. Church of this place in behalf of the Anti-Saloon League. If the people would be interested in the cause as much as Mr. Claycomb expresses an earnestness in his lecture the evil would soon be removed.

On Friday, June 7, the home of Mrs. Emanuel Miller was the scene of a pleasant quilting. She was presented with a handsome quilt made by her many friends and relatives. All present report having an enjoyable time with plenty of ice cream and cake. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Sigal Bender, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Custer, Mrs. J. H. Miller, Mrs. William Kallman, Mrs. Rufus Miller, Mrs. W. M. Moore, Mrs. Grover Miller, Mrs. Guy Rowzer, Mrs. Solomon Miller, Mrs. Silas Shaffer, Mrs. John Appleman, Mrs. T. K. Blackburn; Misses Margaret Kinzey, Lena Custer, Leora, Mildred, Gladys, Goldie, Eva and Hilda Miller; Orlo and Dennis Bender, Walter Moore, Harry and Janet Cuppett, Guyne and Mervin Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Miller.

Rev. W. H. Hayes of Youngwood has been appointed as pastor of New Paris charge of the U. B. Church. He will preach as follows: Sunday, June 16, at New Paris at 10:30 a. m.; at Stone Church at 2:30 p. m.; at Ryot at 7:45 p. m. On the following Sunday at Helixville at 10:30 a. m.; Crumb at 3 p. m. and Ogletown at 7:45 p. m.

You will be pleased with our neat job work. Give us a call.

HATCHING TURKS BY MACHINE

Hatching turkeys by machine may seem a sacrilege to the nature lover; but, however much a nature fake stunt it appears, the trick works if a good incubator and right methods are employed. We picture a good style incubator that hatches fine poult. It has a good sized air chamber, ten inches from floor to top, which insures air and head room required.

A large moisture pan, size of egg tray, filled with sand and water, occupies floor of machine and is kept in machine throughout hatch. The machine is self ventilating, holds 100 turkeys' eggs or 150 hens' eggs, and a delicate thermostat makes it easy to control. When heated to 102 degrees the damper is set to blow off at that degree, and the turkey egg tray is slipped in.

The heat at once drops when cold eggs are put in, but in a few hours rises, and the machine must be watched carefully lest eggs be overheated.

Keep heat at 102 degrees first week and 103 degrees the remaining three weeks and begin to turn the eggs on the fourth day and turn them every twelve hours up to twenty-sixth day. Roll them gently with palm of hand, making center and outside eggs change places. Test eggs on twelfth day, being careful to avoid chilling. As turkey eggs are generally very fertile, few may be tested out, but if a number are removed bunch the remainder in center of tray and use slats to keep them from rolling. A hatch should be finished in twenty-eight days, the eggs beginning to pip on the twenty-seventh. Poult should not be fed for forty-eight hours after hatch and should be kept in nursery during that time, the temperature of machine being gradually tempered down to harden them to meet the lower degree in the brooder.

On second day the poult should be removed to brooder, 90 to 95 degrees being about the right heat to start them, actions of poult always being the criterion.

DON'TS.

Don't tell folks all your faults. Like weed seeds the mean things will come to the surface quick enough.

Don't expect to sell many eggs for hatching unless you advertise. Your own home and county paper will be found the proper paper.

Don't waste your substance in riotous living. It is not only wrong, but impractical. Remember old age and the inevitable rainy day.

Don't search antiquity for cruel tyrants. The man who works a horse hard and is too stingy to give him sufficient feed is old Nero's double.

Don't turn up your nose at the man in blue. That hero in overalls needs no dress suit to make him respectable, but the society dude becomes a social outcast without one.

Don't write and praise "Poultry Notes" and ask extra poultry information and then neglect to keep the editor paid up. Always pay in advance and hurrah for the chance!

Don't forget that a newspaper subscription receipt is one of the assets of an honest man. As little fluttering straws show which way the winds blow so unpaid newspaper bills among a dead man's papers show which way such men go.

Don't stand off and criticize the farmer's flock because it does not lay so well as the hens on your big plant. Please remember that the farmer is not a professional poultryman like you. While fairs flock produce the bulk of our billion dollar poultry product, the farmer is also kept rather busy feeding the whole nation.

O YOU GARDEN SASST!
It's time to get the garden spade. I hear old robin's song. The sprouts on them there onions is a-gittin' muddin' long. You bet I ain't kotched nappin'! When springtime comes ag'in. I'm allus fust in these yere parts To stick my onions in.

What! You don't eat no onions? Well, I'll be Joe kicked! You think the smell is nasty? Well, you must be ferried! Gimme a bunch of onions. An' salt an' butter bread. Go eat your prunes an' breakfast feeds. An' ole canned beans instead.

Of course we'll sow some lettuce— The crinkly, curly sort— An' sugar peas an' yaller beans, I guess about six quart. We'll put in taters an' tomat, Sweet corn an' salsify; You bet we'll drop some punkin seed! I do love punkin pie!

An' reddishes—you don't eat 'em Because they scent your breath? Ha, ha! You sure now are some crank! You tickle me to death! Now, Bill, tack up that chicken sign— "Keep Off the Garden Sassa!" Now, neighbors, keep your Shanghai home.

Or you will yell, alas!

LIME FOR POULTRY.

A hen's bill of fare is naturally composed of animal, vegetable and mineral matter, the latter being summed up in the word—ash.

Some of this mineral matter she extracts from food and water, and it goes to aid digestion, is found in blood and tissue, but most of it, in the form of lime, builds bone and makes egg shell.

Through the depletion of the soil of certain mineral elements and increased egg production, fowls, especially in winter, do not get sufficient lime, and it must be supplied or the hen will lay soft shelled eggs or eat one eggshell to make the next.

The eggshell contains 98 per cent calcareous material, arranged in minute crystals, between which are pores, through which air and moisture pass.

Seashells contain about the same per cent of phosphate of lime and carbonate of lime as an eggshell, the only difference being that the eggshell has 1.5 per cent more animal matter, which is furnished by the skin lining of the eggshell.

Clean oyster shell, cracked the necessary size, is best fitted to supply hens. This essential mineral element should be kept before them at all times, but it must not be substituted for grit, as it has no cutting edge and soon grinds fine.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

The 1,203 county fairs of the United States last year showed total receipts amounting to $2,525,750. The poultry entries at some of them reached $3,000.

The cut of a capon generally heals in about ten days and no stitching is necessary. At times wind puff will appear, and this air should be drawn off by pricking the distended skin.

The Ornithologists' union declares pheasants will soon be extinct. The guinea has already taken its place in the restaurants and it might be wise for this bird society to keep mum for the sake of the guinea industry.

A few dirty eggs in a crate or basket spoil the appearance of the whole bunch and lower their value, even if they are all fresh. Cider vinegar is a good egg cleanser, but soiled eggs should really be used for home cooking as soon as found.

Many have the hallucination that the poultry business, like perpetuum motion, runs itself. Without serious planning, or a practical system, or a working knowledge of poultry culture they tumble into it and then come bumps and a bust up.

According to the census, there are 5,361 ostriches in the United States divided among Arizona, California, Arkansas, Texas and Florida. But the census does not include the flourishing Bloomsburg (Pa.) plant, the only ostrich farm in the east.

The New York Produce Review makes great capital over the arrest of an Indiana farmer for selling bad eggs to a grocer. Let's see—how many New York and Philadelphia egg (regg) men have been fined or sent to the penitentiary for selling vile rots and spots anyhow? Can't remember them all? Here too.

When some persons note the high price of winter eggs they conclude that all a poultryman does to get these eggs is to wave a magic wand and they come and are sold at a great profit. Winter eggs cost most in money, planning and work, but some fellows think different until they try the easy game and bust up.

At the late Crystal palace show the first in numbers was the Orpington 918 being exhibited. Second in popularity was the Wyandotte, 812 being entered. This is speaking volumes for the Wyandotte, an American breed, for the Orpington originated in England and is England's popular white meat market fowl.

The farm journals are taking more interest than formerly in poultry. These papers have a great opportunity to spread reliable poultry information, to improve the farm flock and thus increase the billion dollar poultry product. The day is coming when every paper of consequence will have an up to date poultry department.

The department of agriculture, Washington, predicts that 1920 will see the end of the turkey tribe if the present rate of decrease continues. There is one thing sure, the government will not weep much over "love's labor lost" on the turkey, for mighty little attention has been paid to the fowl by the bureau of animal husbandry.

THE PENGUIN.

It is Awkward on Land and a Gymnast in the Water.

A kind of penguin, the adelle, is a laugh provoking bird. Adelles are most inquisitive and at times are in such a hurry to follow up a clue that they will scramble along the ice on the belly, pushing with their legs and using their flippers alternately like the paddle of a canoe. They get over the ground at an astonishing rate, and it is hard work to overtake a penguin when it takes to this means of locomotion, especially when it doubles.

In the water the penguin is perfectly at home, diving and steeplechasing in grand style. It can jump clean out of the water and pop down on the ice exactly like some one coming up through a trapdoor on the stage and dropping on his feet. The penguins collect in enormous numbers and are sometimes seen marching about like a regiment of soldiers in Indian file, all acting in unison.

A much larger penguin, the emperor, weighs sixty or seventy pounds and stands well over three feet high. It possesses the most extraordinary muscular powers in its flippers. When presented with the end of the ski stick the emperor gives it such a smack that one's hands tingle. At the same time it utters an angry guttural exclamation.

SPEED OF OSTRICHES.

The Swiftest Birds Are Chosen by Buyers for Menageries.

In selecting ostriches for menageries or zoological gardens the swiftest are chosen, not because it will be necessary for them to run in their new quarters, but because swiftness is a good indication of health and robustness.

A buying agent visited a pen of ostriches in Africa. At his call two beautiful birds came up to him. Being desirous of testing their speed, he arranged with the keeper that they should run a race. So he caressed the birds and showed them a handful of figs, of which they are very fond.

The ostriches were held while the visitor walked to a certain distance. At a signal they were set free and began to run for the figs. They came bounding along at a terrific rate, taking twelve or fourteen feet at a stride.

They ran neck and neck for more than half the distance, their wing-working like arms and making a great sound. Presently one drew ahead and, looking behind, as you may have noticed a boy in a foot race do, to see where his rival was, and finding him beaten, the winner slackened his pace and gently trotted up for the prize of figs.—Exchange.

The "Anchor" Shot in Billiards.

The "anchor" or "cradle" shot, as it was called before it was excluded from all professional billiard matches, was made when two balls were jammed in one of the six pockets of the regulation English billiard table so that the player, by extremely delicate cue work, could keep them there indefinitely and practically run his score as high as he wanted to. Billiardists quickly recognized that it was not strictly sportsmanlike and therefore abolished it in their contests. Frank Ives may properly be called the discoverer of the shot, although he stumbled upon it by accident rather than by careful computation of billiard angles. In a match with John Roberts in London for the world's championship he jammed two balls in one of the pockets and held them there until he ran out and won the trophy. His run of 2,540 points was a world's record.—New York Times

A WELCOME
By ARTHUR WILLIAMS

During the first half of the nineteenth century the weapon in vogue in what was then "the west"—Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio—was the bowie knife. It took its name from Colonel Bowie, its inventor or at least the man who made it famous by his frequent use of it. It was twelve or fourteen inches long and was worn usually stuck in a belt at the waist, but men have been known to carry it hanging between the shoulder blades. This was probably because when its quick use was called for a man could throw his hand up to the back of his neck and pull it out in a hurry.

It was back in the thirties or the forties that a young man alighted from the stagecoach that drew up to a tavern in the town of Vincennes, Ind., now a sizable place, but then a back woods village. He wore his hair long, and there was a German cut about his clothes.

"I wonder who that feller is?" remarked Bill Thompson, who was sitting in the open window of the bar of the tavern. "He don't look like any thing I ever see in these parts afore."

"Dutchman," said Si Griggs. "Not a bit of a Dutchman! The Dutch that come out yere don't wear no sich clothes as them. If he's come out to stay I reckon he'll need a settin' down. He's rayther too fine a bird for this yere wilderness."

The two men followed the stranger to the bar, and as soon as he had been provided with a room Thompson stepped up to him and said:

"Stranger, welcome to Vincennes. Do you mean to stay with us?"

"For awhile."

"Well, come in and have a drink. We always expect strangers to drink with us when they come yere. It's a regular institution with us."

"I don't drink anything but beer or wine."

"Beer or wine! D'ye expect to get them soft drinks out yere? Brandy is the drink in these parts. Step up and try it."

The stranger said he had never drunk liquors and didn't care to begin. Whereupon the two men undertook to force him into the customs of the country. He was very obstinate and persisted in refusing.

"Waal, stranger," said Thompson, "the custom out yere is drink or fight. Which'll you do?"

"What kind of fighting do you mean—boxing?"

"Boxing! D'ye suppose we skin our delicate knuckles on one another? No much! We use Colonel Bowie's implement."

"What's that?"

"Didn't yer never see one?" And he pulled the article out from the back of his neck. The stranger took it and examined it, running his thumb along the sharp edge of the blade and feeling the point with the tip of his forefinger.

"When you fight with this," he asked, "do you wear anything about your stomach or your chest?"

"Haw, haw!" laughed both men. Now, they were bluffing. They had no idea of fighting the young man, but they wished to intimidate him into western customs.

"You say I must fight or drink?" asked the youngster.

"That's our way out yere."

"With that thing?"

"Yes."

"Well," continued the stranger, "if you'll cover up your body, leaving only your legs, arms and face exposed, I think I'll fight."

"What y' givin' me?" said Thompson. "What y' goin' to do about your own body?"

"Nothing."

"If you's agoin' to fight," said Si Griggs, "come on and stop yer foolin'."

Griggs and Thompson exchanged glances, and Thompson put on more bluff than ever, leading the way to a suitable spot for the contest. Griggs gave the stranger his knife, and the other two took position. They were somewhat surprised at his readiness to fight, and Thompson, though he kept up a swag, began to look a trifle uneasy. He was afraid he'd be obliged to hurt the youngster. He stood on the defensive, but this was because he had to. The knife in his opponent's hand was like a humming bird's wings—flitting dangerously near Thompson's face. Presently he felt blood trickling from his nose, and, putting up a hand, found the tip end was gone.

"By gum!" he exclaimed. "This job has gone far enough. Who be ye, younker, anyway, and where did y' learn to handle a bowie knife?"

"I'm Frederick Dubois, the son of Jules Dubois, one of the original French settlers of Vancouver. I've finished at a German university, and it is there I learned to handle the sword, which is but a trifle longer than this bowie knife. I have come out here either to sell the family property, or settle here. I don't know which; but judging by you gentlemen, you must all be fine fellows, and I think I'll 'main with you."

SUNDAY SCHOOL.
Lesson XI.—Second Quarter, For June 16, 1912.
THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xi, 2-19. Memory Verses, 5, 6—Golden Text, Luke vii, 28. R. V.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

According to the harmony of the gospels, the Sermon on the Mount was followed by His using Simon Peter's boat as a pulpit and then filling their net with fishes after a night of fruitless toil. After that came the healing of the leper and the palsied man, the call of Matthew and the feast he prepared in his own house, the healing of the impotent man at Bethesda, the man in the synagogue with the withered hand, the night of prayer, the choosing of the twelve, the sermon on the plain, the healing of the centurion's servant, the raising to life of the widow's son and much teaching day by day. Whether this is quite correct as to the order of events or not is not all important if we can by faith see ourselves day by day with Him who, being anointed with the Holy Ghost and with power, went about doing good and healing all that were oppressed of the devil, God being with Him and doing through Him the miracles and signs and wonders (Acts x, 38; i, 22).

There was one great and good man who did not see these wonders of His power from day to day, for he was shut up in a prison for the truth's sake, but he heard of them and evidently wondered why the one upon whom he had seen the Spirit descend like a dove and remain upon Him, who, he had been told by God, was the Messiah and whom he had pointed out as the Lamb of God (John i, 31-36), did not deliver him from prison, for it had been predicted concerning Him that He would proclaim liberty to the captives and the opening of the prison to them that are bound (Isa. lxi, 1). As far as we know Jesus never visited John in prison nor sent him any message up to this time, and the father of lies was no doubt very busy with John questioning the way of God and the love of God and insinuating that, after all, John must have been mistaken in pointing out Jesus as the Messiah. If John had not been in some way and in some measure offended with Jesus would He have sent him the message He did. "Blessed is he who ever shall not be offended in Me?" (Verse 6.) To the question of John through the two disciples whom he sent, "Art thou he that should, or do we look for another?" (verse 3) Jesus in that same hour wrought many miracles and said, "Go your way and tell John what things ye have seen and heard," and then He added the word about not being offended (Luke vii, 20-23). At one time Jesus said to the Jews, "If I do not the works of my Father believe Me not, but if I do, though ye believe not Me, believe the works that ye may know and believe that the Father is in Me and I in Him" (John x, 37, 38). All this is in accord with last week's lesson on the necessity of works as an evidence, and doing always precedes teaching (Matt. v, 19; Mark vi, 30; Acts i, 1; iv, 20; Luke xxiv, 19). Notwithstanding all His mighty works on behalf of Israel when and after He had brought them out of Egypt, they were constantly being offended with Him and murmuring against Him. They spake against Him, they believed not in Him, they provoked Him, they forgot Him, and many a time He, being full of compassion, turned His anger away from them, for He remembered that they were but flesh (Ps. lxxviii). What a picture of ourselves and how much we need that absolute confidence in Him and obedience to Him at all times which will keep us from ever being offended (John xvi, 1-4).

The disciples of John having departed, Jesus said to the multitudes that John was no reed shaken with the wind nor was he such as live in kings' houses, gorgeously appareled and living delicately, but he was indeed the messenger predicted by Isaiah, and no greater prophet was ever born of woman, and if they had received him he would have been to them Elijah. Compare Matt. xvii, 12, 13, but do not fail to notice in the preceding verses that the real Elijah is yet to come. The saying, "He that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he" (verse 11), has perplexed many because they have not noticed the meaning of "in the kingdom" and have not understood that the kingdom cannot come until the king comes back again. Then the least in his resurrection glory will be greater than John was, and John himself will be greater than he ever was before. The kingdom was at hand when Jesus was on earth. It was in their midst in His person, as He said in Luke xvii, 21, margin, but they did not recognize Him or it, but by force resisted it, ill treating John and later Himself and going to both as their rebellious, wicked hearts prompted them. He therefore told them plainly that the kingdom would not come at that time and not until His return (Luke xix, 11-13). I am continually perplexed by statements from men who ought to understand about the extension and the advancement of a kingdom that is not yet begun. Neither John nor Jesus, Christ can please some people, and the number of those whom the Bible does not suit seems to be increasing, but the word of the Lord stands, and "wisdom is vindicated by her actions" (verse 19, Weymouth).

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD
No Other Newspaper in the World Gives so Much at so Low a Price.
The great political campaigns are now at hand, and you want the news accurately and promptly. The World long since established a record for impartiality, and anybody can afford its Thrice-a-Week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. The Thrice-a-Week World also abounds in other strong features, serial stories, humor, markets, cartoons; in fact, everything that is to be found in a first-class daily.
THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1 per year, and this pays for 186 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Gazette, together for one year for $2.20. The regular price of the two papers is $2.50.

serious matters to bandy about at such an early stage of the proceedings.

The corruption story was scoffed at by the Roosevelt people generally. Even a verbal charge by one of the Taft leaders that there are 68 delegates in Mississippi, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Virginia who are believed to be parties for Roosevelt persuasion was put down as a campaign canard.

"We have enough delegates to nominate Roosevelt without resorting to such infamy," said a leading Roosevelt booster. "If there is any corruption it is on the other side."

The other big development of the day was the announcement by Ex-Senator Flinn of Pittsburgh, the Roosevelt personal representative, that 28 of the presidential electors already nominated in Pennsylvania will not vote for Taft if the President shall become the choice of the convention.

Flinn was backed up in this statement by Governor Glasscock of West Virginia and Theodore M. Goslin, who is a candidate for the Michigan seat in the U. S. Senate now occupied by William Alden Smith.

Flinn, Glasscock and Goslin have made out a list of fourteen states, Maine, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Washington, Oregon, Illinois, Minnesota, South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Wisconsin, North Dakota and West Virginia, whose electors, they say, will, in part at least, repudiate Taft when they take their seats in the electoral college.

This threat of a post convention split attracted but little attention, even among the Roosevelt men, who are still busy trying to see what they can do about nominating their candidate at the convention.

Flinn ignored the charge that he has formed an alliance with the Mayor of Chicago for the purpose of sending non-delegates into the convention under police protection to organize a rump convention and probably a riot.

The Taft supporters heard with profound disgust Wednesday a report from Charles P. Hiles, Mr. Taft's secretary, that the President, sure that he is to be nominated, is now advocating a progressive platform in the interest of harmony after the convention.

Men like Crane and Penrose who have been behind Mr. Taft for the sole reason that they do not want a progressive platform, will make no concessions in that direction and, as the platform must be adopted before the nominations are made, Mr. Taft, will, if nominated, have to take the platform that is given him.

"What has he got to do with it, anyway?" said one Senator who is working for Taft, "he is only a candidate."

Miss Dora Keen, daughter of a famous Philadelphia surgeon, who has just completed the ascent of Mount Blackburn in Alaska (over 16,000 feet), will describe fully in the July Scribner, with many photographs, her first attack upon Mount Blackburn last summer which showed the way to her present success.

Norway Maple Aphids

At this time of year many letters are received by State Zoologist H. A. Surface at his office in Harrisburg, requesting information concerning the Norway Maple tree to fall. The following is a copy of a reply which has been sent to an inquirer, and contains information of interest to others:

"This is commonly called the Norway maple Aphid. Generally during the early part of the summer they cause considerable concern by infesting the leaves of Norway maple trees, and causing them to drop to some extent. The infested leaves have a sticky substance upon them which is also to be seen on the sidewalks under the trees, looking like drops of oil. This is honey dew, which has been produced by the Aphids, and which attracts ants and other insects in great numbers.

"As these Aphids are sucking insects, they can not be killed by arsenical sprays for chewing insects. To destroy them one can spray with one pound of whale oil soap in about five or six gallons of water or kerosene emulsion containing about eight or ten per cent. kerosene, or very strong tobacco decoction, but as a rule it is not necessary to do anything for them. They will cause some leaves to drop, which will not permanently injure the trees. Every year we receive great numbers of them, sent to this office with the inquiry as to what to do for them, and we have never yet seen evidence of their permanent damage.

"They will disappear later in the season, although they cause considerable alarm at the present time. Keep the trees thrifty and growing by watering if the season should become dry, and by giving the trees some nitrogen plant food in the form of nitrate of soda or cleanings from the poultry house, or commercial fertilizer."
